Participating Organizations

Representatives from the following organizations contributed their time and expertise to this edition of Cobb County Resource Directory for Senior Citizens.

The Senior Citizen Council

The Senior Citizen Council of Cobb County was formed in 1973. It is a tax-exempt nonprofit organization, sponsored by Cobb Senior Services, whose primary function is to further the common good and general welfare of Cobb County adults over the age of 55. It now embraces approximately 50 clubs and 3500 individual members. Other organizations striving to meet the needs of seniors in the community consider the Council as a role model in Georgia.

The Council encourages seniors to stay involved in the community and provides a forum on aging issues. It also recognizes contributions made by senior volunteers and awards scholarships to students who plan to further their careers in gerontology. The Bulletin, a monthly newspaper, informs seniors about pertinent events, activities, trips and legislation.

If you are interested in joining the Senior Council, please complete the application form in the back of Resource Directory, mail it and the proper dues amount to the address listed on the form.

Cobb Senior Services

A department of Cobb County Government, Senior Services has enhanced the quality of life of Cobb County seniors by meeting their social, educational and recreational needs. Ten senior centers, including the Adult Day Care facility, the Meals on Wheels program, a van pool transportation service, in-home services, classes such as computer training are only a part of the services offered to seniors over 55 years of age. More than 900 volunteers donate their time and resources to every phase of Senior Services. For more information, visit www.cobbseniors.org, or call 770-528-5355, the main number. Atlanta Regional Commission

The Atlanta Regional Commission (ARC), the Area Agency on Aging (AAA) for the ten county Metro Atlanta Region, is a focal point for the aging network. Designated by the Georgia Department of Human Resources to assume this role, ARC serves senior adults, family members, caregivers, friends, service provider agencies and the community at large. AAAs are responsible for planning, developing, implementing and coordinating the delivery of services to senior adults, and responsible for identifying resources in their respective geographic areas. AAAs are part of a comprehensive nationwide information and referral system that responds to the needs of senior adults and their caregivers throughout the country.

For information and referrals for aging services and resources throughout Georgia, please contact the Aging Connection at 404-463-3333. You are also encouraged to visit the website at www.agewise.com

MOST FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

What Is The Difference Between Medicare And Medicaid?

Medicare is the federal health insurance program for people 65 years of age or older and certain disabled people. Your local Social Security Administration office takes applications for Medicare and provides general information about their program.

Medicaid is a medical assistance program jointly financed by the State and Federal governments for eligible low-income individuals. Medicaid coverage and eligibility vary among states, and eligibility depends on both financial and non-financial criteria.

Where Do I Get Information Or Apply For Medicaid?

Refer to Medicaid listing under “ Most Frequently Called Numbers.

What Is The Difference Between Dementia And Alzheimer’s

Dementia is not a disease, but is a syndrome marked by deterioration in intellectual performance that involves memory loss and is severe enough to interfere with work or social activities or both. There is almost always a loss of problem-solving ability and other aspects of abstract thinking, as well. Alzheimer’s disease (AD) is the most common form of dementia.

The earliest symptom of Alzheimer’s disease is usually short-term memory loss. Other symptoms may include problems with learning, attention, judgment, and orientation; difficulty in finding the right word; and changes in personality and behavior. There are two points to keep in mind. One, the majority of elderly persons who exhibit symptoms of dementia will turn out to have AD. Two, there are other causes of dementia symptoms that may be treatable and curable. Thus, every person with these symptoms deserves a thorough medical investigation by a physician who is familiar with dementia and the elderly. What Services Are Provided For Seniors Needing Extra Care At Home?

In-Home Care provides individuals with a wide variety of supportive services that enable them to remain in their own home. In-home care allows patients to be discharged from hospitals earlier than expected because any remaining treatments can be performed in the home. Services include any combination of home health care, including medical equipment, respite care (offers relief to caregivers from demands of providing ongoing care), homemaker services, heavy duty chore services, licensed nurses, therapists and social workers, monitoring medications, assistance with the activities of daily living, home-delivered meals, companion services, telephone reassurance, and emergency response systems. Services can be hourly, weekly, monthly, or by any other arrangement. For information regarding care in Cobb County, refer to HOME HEALTH AGENCIES.

Home Health/Skilled Services are prescribed by a physician and implemented by a home health care agency. They include physical therapy, speech therapy, occupational therapy, intravenous therapy, wound care and dressing, catheterization and injections and respite. Medicare provides limited coverage for these skilled services. Home care under Medicare Part B is limited in many cases.

What Care Is Available Outside The Home?

Look under categories: HOSPITALS, HOSPICE CARE, HOUSING OPTIONS AND HOUSING SERVICES

Adult Day Care/Day Respite usually provides a structured program with activities, lunch, health and rehabilitative services, occasional outings, family support and/or counseling and transportation. Clients must meet eligibility requirements.

Independent Living is for people who want to and are able to live independently and prefer to live in a community with others of the same age and with similar interests. An independent retirement community allows for a variety of social activities and trips. Many independent living communities also offer prepared meals and provide a wide range of amenities.

Retirement Communities are also known as Continuing Care or Life Care Communities. The primary advantage of retirement communities is that an individual or couple does not need to relocate if circumstances related to their health change. Because of the breadth of care available, they are generally more costly than the other forms of available residential care. Most elders finance this by the sale of a home.

Personal Care (Assisted Living Facilities) Personal Care Homes provide housing in a group setting for elderly or disabled individuals. The Office of Regulatory Services must license Personal Care Homes. They are sometimes given names that include the phrase “assisted living/or Personal Care Homes provide 24-hourwatchful oversight and generally offer staffing and a level of care between independence and that offered by a nursing home. All facilities are required to post their last inspection report for review. If there are questions about this report contact the Office of Regulatory Services, Personal Care Home Section at (404) 657-4076.

Skilled Nursing Facilities (Nursing Homes) offer a protective, therapeutic environment for those individuals who require rehabilitative care or can no longer live independently because of a chronic physical or mental condition which requires round-the-clock skilled nursing care. These communities provide care similar to that received in the hospital. Communities that receive Medicaid and Medicare reimbursements are required to maintain a social service staff and provide daily social activities for residents. If there are questions about this report contact the Office of Regulatory Services, Personal Care Home Section at (404) 657-4076.

Hospice care provides services at home or health care community for terminally ill residents and their families. Care is usually supervised by the family's physician working cooperatively with a team of professionals that include nurses, social workers, clergy and home health care aides. Hospice care primarily manages pain and discomfort, creating an environment that encourages individual as well as loved ones to openly grieve, talk, grow and enjoy each other while remaining physically and emotionally close until the end. People do not usually enter hospice care until their projected final six (6) months of life.
